NEW YORK & GENEVA--(BUSINESS WIRE)--July 22, 2003--Infotec SA has signed a three-year contract to use Radianz's network and hosting services.

Infotec will use Radianz's services for business continuity and to connect more financial institutions worldwide to its financial services. Those services will be housed in Radianz's Geneva hosting facility.

Radianz will supply the networking using existing infrastructure in its global financial extranet, RadianzNet, which is connected to more than 9,000 financial institutions worldwide, including many of Infotec's current and targeted customers.

Robert Jeanbart, CEO of Infotec said, "We selected Radianz because we can immediately leverage its existing networking and financial expertise instead of waiting for a carrier to install and customize the same services for financial use.

"The approach is far more efficient because Radianz's infrastructure already is connected to the exchanges and bourses that provide the information used in the electronic applications we deliver, and to the institutions worldwide that use those applications."

Chris Church, executive vice president and head of Global Sales and Marketing for Radianz said, "We are delighted to support Infotec's business growth by providing them with quick access to the institutions that are connected to RadianzNet. By using our existing infrastructure, Infotec will be able to deploy its solution quicker and reach business partners using a single network platform instead of multiple point-to-point network connections."
